Families In Crisis: The Private Sector Response: Hearing Before the Select Committee on Children, Youth, and Families

- Elizabeth Singer

Supporting Families in Crisis: Barry Leonard 2009-05-05 Natural disasters, illness, layoffs, shootings, and family violence are events experienced by families. In many of these highly stressful or traumatic situations, the lives of families are disrupted and basic family responsibilities may not be met. Head Start staff throughout the country report the growing and complex needs of the children and families they serve. This guide offers Head Start staff training on how to prevent, identify, and respond to family crises in ways that can build resiliency in families. Focuses on the strategies of crisis prevention and intervention. Examines issues of family and staff safety at a number of levels: risk assessment, family member, staff self-protective measures, and program measures aimed at staff safety. Illustrations.

Evaluating Family-based Services - Peter J. Pecora 1995

"Family-based service (FBS) programs have been developing rapidly across the country at a time of increasingly scarce human resources and in a politically volatile climate. Such a context has made evaluation of such programs imperative. The present volume reviews basic elements of evaluation in the light of current knowledge and then highlights the most useful research instruments for measuring changes in child and family functioning. Chapters focus on evaluation methods that can be employed to determine the success of existing policy and to influence the development of new policy." A companion volume to Families in Crisis, this book will serve as a practical manual on FBS evaluation and a guide to current debates on research and policy for programs to support and strengthen families. -- BOOK JACKET. Crisis Intervention - Alan A. Cavaiola 2017-10-24

Crisis Intervention takes into account various environments and populations across the lifespan to provide students with practical guidelines for managing crises. Drawing on over 25 years of relevant experience, authors Alan A. Cavaiola and Joseph E. Colford cover several different types of crises frequently encountered by professionals in medical, school, work, and community settings. Models for effectively managing these crises are presented along with the authors' own step-by-step approach, the Listen-Assess-Plan-Commit (LAPC) model, giving students the freedom to select a model that best fits their personal style or a given crisis. Future mental health professionals will gain the knowledge, skills, and confidence to help their clients manage the crises they will encounter in their day-to-day lives.

Families in Troubled Times - Glen Holl Elder 1992

The turbulent decade of the 1980s began with financial calamity in several sectors of the United States economy, from automaking to agriculture. The rural Midwest experienced its worst economic decline since the Depression years. Thousands of farmers lost their operations, and the small rural communities that serve agriculture often changed from prosperous business centers to struggling villages with many empty buildings and boarded-up storefronts along their main streets. Families in Troubled Times examines the plight of several hundred rural families who have lived through these difficult years. The participants in the Iowa Truth and Families Project, the subjects of the present study, include farmers, people from small towns, and those who lost farms and other businesses as a result of the "farm crisis." The book traces the influence of economic hardship on the emotions, behavior, and relationships of parents, children, siblings, husbands, and wives. The results of the study show that although economic stress has a powerful adverse effect on individuals and families, countervailing social influence can help to blunt these negative processes and to assist in the repair of the personal and interpersonal damage they produce.

Try To Stop Me! - Jonathan Paul Miller 2018

"I don't have to write a long testimony for our book: Just go right down that list (the 'Red Neck Version of the Ten Commandments'), and I've pretty much done a through job breaking every one of them, and I was proud of it--proud and arrogant!" These were Jonathan's words, as he sat beside his mother to begin the telling of his prodigal journey. This is Jonathan's first book, written as a result of his invitation to his mother to "work her magic" with his narration.---cover page 4.
